Light, Water, and the Color of Life - An exhibit by Rick Lodmell

Will be on display from December 16-January 31 in the display cases lining the meeting room corridor.

Rick Lodmell's pursuit of art ranges from early classical piano training to writing to visual representation, culminating in 2006 with gallery displays, art fairs, and various juried exhibits of fine art photography. Raised in South Dakota, Mr. Lodmell has lived in a number of locations (from Arizona to Germany) but has always returned to the unique allure of the Midwest. His pursuit of photography was especially influenced over the years by input from professional mentors. He enjoys the play of light on waters and its enhancement of this area's natural beauty. Among other photo opportunities, he is drawn to the "music" of the Hennepin Canal. A camera offers rewards for studied effort, reflections of mood, unexpected surprises, and most importantly, the chance to share a beauty beyond us.
